GENERAL DESIGN REQUIREMENTS GRAPHIC MATERIAL, TABLES, FORMULAS

1. The graphic material is placed directly after the text in which it is mentioned for the first time, or on the next page. Any graphic material (drawing, diagram, diagram, drawing, etc.) is designated in the article by the word "Drawing", highlighting in bold. The word "Drawing" and its number are given under the graphic material, placing horizontally in the center. If necessary, explanatory data, notes and footnotes are also placed under the graphic material. In this case, the designation and name of the graphic material are placed after the explanatory data. Further, its thematic name, separated by a dash, can be given. The graphic material, with the exception of the graphic material of the appendices, is numbered in Arabic numerals, as a rule, through numbering, giving these numbers after the word "Drawing". If there is one drawing, then it is designated "Figure 1".

2. After the word "Table", the table number is given. At the same time, the point after the table number is not put. If necessary, a brief description of the contents of the table is given its name, which is written with a capital letter above the table after its number, separating a dash from it. In this case, the point after the name of the table is not put. The designation and name (if available) should be centered above the table, highlighting in bold. Table footnotes are located under the table.

3. Formulas, with the exception of those placed in appendices, tables and explanatory data to the graphic material, are numbered by end-to-end numbering in Arabic numerals. In this case, the formula number is written in parentheses at the same level with it to the right of the formula.

The authors are responsible for the content of the article.

Rejected articles are not sent to the authors.

The Editorial Board reserves the right not to consider articles issued in violation of the rules.
